GERMANY GIVES NEW ORDERS TO SUBMARINE COMMANDERS BUT NOTE IS DISAPPOINTING

Says U. S. Fails to Consider
British Attempt to Starve
German People.

SOME CHARGES ARE DENIED

Note Makes No Admission That It Was German Submarine That Sank the Sussex; Interpretation of Term
"Merchant Vessel" May Differ.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 5.—The German reply to the American note respecting submarine warfare delivered Thursday to Ambassador Gerard reserved further communications on the sinking of the channel steamer Sussex until certain points are ascertained. "Should it turn out," the note continues, "that the commander was wrong in assuming the vessel to be a man-of-war, the German government will not fail to draw the consequences resulting therefrom."

Some statements made by the American government in relation to the Sussex are denied and the assertion made that the German submarine forces have had orders to conduct submarine warfare in accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law.

Germany admits that errors actually occurred and adds that: "Allowance must be made in the conduct of naval warfare against an enemy resorting to all kinds of ruses whether permissible or illicit."

"As the German government repeatedly declared it cannot dispense with the use of the submarine weapon in the conduct of warfare against the enemy, the German government, however, has now decided to make further concessions adopting methods of submarine warfare to the interest of neutrals."

The note then sets forth that Germany was compelled in "self defense" against the illicit conduct of British warfare "while fighting a bitter struggle for national existence" to resort to the "hard but effective weapon of submarine warfare" and reiterates Germany's regret that "sentiments of humanity which the United States extends with such fervor to the unhappy victims of submarine warfare are not extended with the same warmth of feeling to many millions of women and children who, according to the avowed intention of the British government, shall be starved."

Protest is entered against the United States supplying the enemies of Germany with war materials, but the note declares Germany wishes as far as lies with its government to prevent a breaking off of the relations that for a hundred years have been maintained between the United States and that country.

"The German government guided by this idea," continues the note, "notifies the government of the United States that German naval forces have received the following order:

"In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law both vessels, both within and without the area declared a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives unless the ship attempts to escape or offer resistance."

"But neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for existence, shall for the sake of neutral interests restrict the use of an effective weapon if the enemy is permitted to continue to apply to all methods of warfare violating rules of international law. Such a demand would be incompatible with the character of neutrality and the German government is convinced that the government of the United States does not think of making such a demand knowing that the government of the United States repeatedly declared that it is determined to restore the principle of freedom of the seas from whatever quarters it has been violated."

"Accordingly the German government is confident that in consequence of the new order issued to the naval forces the government of the United States will now consider all impediments removed which may have been in the way of mutual cooperation toward restoration of the freedom of the seas during the war as suggested in the note of July 22, 1915, and it does not doubt that the government of the United States will now demand and insist that the British government shall forthwith observe the rules of international law universally recognized before the war as in it down in the note presented by the government of the United States to the British government December 28, 1914, and November 3, 1915."

"Should steps taken by the government of the United States not attain the object it desires to have the laws of humanity followed by all belligerent nations the German government would then be facing a new situation in which it must reserve for itself complete liberty of decision."

"The undersigned avails himself of this opportunity to renew to the American ambassador assurances of highest consideration."

GERMANY'S NEW ORDER TO HER UNDERSEA BOATS

"In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, vessels both within and without the area declared a naval war zone shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives unless the ship attempts to escape or offer resistance."

NOTE DISAPPOINTING.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—President Wilson and the cabinet were carefully over the German note as transmitted in news dispatches from Berlin. A first feeling that it was unsatisfactory was somewhat lessened by the text of the new order to submarine commanders although it was foreseen that the reference to immunity "for merchant ships" recognized by international law might admit of some dispute of interpretation.

So much depends upon words and their shades of meaning involved in translation from German to English that no decision can be attempted until the official text is in the president's hands.

Ambassador Gerard called today that he had started it on the cables last night. It ought to be in Washington tonight or early tomorrow.

Two views were current in official circles. One was that Germany declared her intention of abandoning her "present method of submarine warfare" as demanded by the president and that the American government might have to wait to see whether the abandonment will be effected.

The other was that the United States having already attempted to have Great Britain give up its interference with neutral commerce and having told Germany that it cannot discuss with her its negotiations with Great Britain, has no course but to break diplomatic relations with Germany.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—While final decision on the attitude of the American government waits on the official text, some cabinet members indicated that the German assurances probably would be accepted.

GERMAN ATTACK ON HILL 304 PROVES FAILURE, FRENCH SAY

Another Zeppelin Is Destroyed on the Norwegian Coast, the Second in Two Days.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 5.—West of the Meuse the Germans, yesterday evening strongly attacked the French position north of Hill 304, says the official statement, issued this afternoon by the French war office, but they were repulsed along the whole front attacked except in one or two points in the advanced trenches.

An attempted attack on the trenches at Cappy, south of the Somme, the statement adds, completely failed. East of the Meuse and in the West there was an intermittent bombardment. Otherwise the front was comparatively calm.

NORWEGIAN BARK SUNK.

LONDON, May 5.—The Norwegian schooner Mars, while bound for England with pilgrims was stopped and burned by a German cruiser, says a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph Company. The crew was saved.

General Scandinavian opinion, the dispatch adds, is that German submarine warfare against merchant shipping is on the wane.

ZEPPELIN DESTROYED.

LONDON, May 5.—A Zeppelin dirigible balloon was destroyed yesterday by one of the British light cruiser squadron off the Scheldt coast, says an official announcement issued by the government today.

This is the second Zeppelin to be destroyed in two days. The Zeppelin L-20 was blown ashore on the Norwegian coast on Wednesday after returning from a trip to the east coast of England and Scotland Tuesday night.

Mrs. Ollie Ramage of Connellsville yesterday filed suit in the Uniontown courts for a divorce from her husband, Clark M. Ramage of Connellsville. They were married December 25, 1907, at Percy. Mrs. Ramage accuses her husband of cruel and barbarous treatment.

ROBINSON FAMILY STRONG FOR PREPAREDNESS; FOUR BOYS MEMBERS OF CO. D

On the roll of Company D, Tenth Regiment, N. G. P., which at this writing is mobilized at the state armory, the name Robinson appears four times. First comes Second Lieutenant John Robinson, then Corporal Charles Robinson, then another corporal in the person of H. L. Robinson, Jr., and last of all Private William Robinson. They are brothers and the sons of Attorney H. L. Robinson of Uniontown. All of which goes to show that the Robinson family is not composed of pacifists; not by a jugful. There are other boys in the Robinson family but they are not soldiers, but only because they are not yet old enough.

Lieutenant John Robinson was a member of the national guard when Uniontown and a company. When it disbanded, he came to Connellsville and joined Company D. During his four years at the University of West Virginia he was an officer in the cadet corps. Charles Robinson is also a graduate of the university at Morgantown and his brother, H. L. Robinson, Jr., is a student at Allegheny College at Meadville, Pa.

STATE TROOPS TO GET COMPENSATION IF ANY ARE HURT

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania, members of the state militia or their families will be paid compensation by the state in case of injury or death suffered in strike duty.

Francis L. Doherty, counsel for the state workmen's compensation board, ruled about two months ago that militiamen are state employees while on duty and that for injury received in the state's employ they shall be compensated under the new workmen's compensation act.

DESERTERS FROM ARMORY COMPELLED TO CARRY BRICKS

Guardsmen Impressed With Fact That Discipline Must be Maintained.

COMPANY IS STILL WAITING

Indications Are That Company D Will Be at the Armory Until Monday at Least; Part of Hospital Corps Has Been Transferred to Greensburg.

Although no official orders have been received it is expected that Company D will be held at the Armory until Monday at least, and perhaps longer. This belief is strengthened by the fact that Regimental Commissary Sergeant Montgomery Dilworth was ordered to Greensburg where he will hand out rations to the different companies of the Tenth tomorrow morning.

No army rations have yet been given out, the men buying their own meals for which 15 cents a day for each man is allowed. Instructions were issued to get three days' rations by purchase and today is the third day. Tomorrow, however, three more days' rations will be handed out, these being army rations. This indicates that the troops will be held until Monday. The allowance of 75 cents a day to each man for his "mess" will be cut off. The rations will be put in charge of the company cooks.

The two privates who escaped the guard yesterday were recaptured in the afternoon. As the first part of their punishment they were made to cut the lawn of the armory. "It was said that some of the bricks which are piled up along the curb for use on Washington avenue, have been borrowed and the deserters were to be put to work, a piling them first at one end of a free space and then at the other end, until ordered to stop. This punishment will probably be inflicted on any others that attempt to get out without leave."

This morning Captain Herwick put his men through a drill on the big parade lot adjoining the armory. This appeared somewhat more to the boys than had working inside the building. The company has now settled down to the day's routine. The drills are eagerly welcomed as anything else that helps to relieve the monotony.

Three men from the hospital corps, Sergeant Moser, P. R. Suez and Charles McCormick, have been detailed to Greensburg. They are fully equipped for service.

Ample order to remain mobilized until Monday was received by Captain Herwick this afternoon.

MANY WORKMEN RETURN.

PITTSBURGH, May 5.—A few workmen entered the shops of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company of East Pittsburgh and hundreds of workmen who had feared to enter the various Bradock plants today by the mob Tuesday were back in their places.

Cavalry patrolled the streets and infantry was on duty at the plant. There was no semblance of disorder.

TWO MONSTER LOCOMOTIVES ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION

Big Engines Come In From West and Will be Hauled Over Mountains to Cumberland.

Two of the big Mallet engines to be used on the Cumberland division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad came into the local yards yesterday at noon and attracted the attention of everyone that saw them. The Mallet, or "7000" engines are even bigger than the monster "S" type now being used on the Connellsville division.

There were only two of the engines brought into the yards but 12 more will be taken through before the entire delivery to the railroad is made. It is these engines that are supplanting the "S" types, hauling capacity being much greater.

The Mallet engines have 15 driving wheels and four cylinders. It would be impossible to get one of them into the local roundhouse. Each weighs 47 tons, compared with 40 tons for one of the type that has recently been put into use here. One railroader expressed himself by saying that the boiler of an "S" engine would go inside the one on a Mallet.

It was at first reported that the Mallets would be set up in the local yards and haul a train out but officials at the offices here denied this. The engines were taken from the yards into this afternoon and hauled down to Cumberland, where better facilities for setting up the monsters are available.

The engines lay on a sidetrack in the yards all morning and were viewed by many curious persons. They are the biggest engines that have ever been taken through here.

Methodists Increase Mission Offering
Over $100,000.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, May 3.—Women of the Methodist Episcopal Church have raised $3,432.505 during the last year for home mission purposes, according to figures submitted to the General Conference of the church today.

This is an increase of nearly $100,000 over that raised during the preceding four years. The money is contributed through the Women's Home Missionary Society. The society, according to the reports, owns schools, hospitals, homes for girls and other institutions in the United States, Alaska, and Porto Rico that are valued at $2,354,753.

CIRCUS WILL SPEND TWO DAYS HERE, ARRIVING IN CITY EARLY ON SUNDAY

Connellsville people who are interested in the workings of a big circus will have more than usual opportunity to observe the Hagenbeck-Wallace shows, for the show will spend two days here, arriving early Sunday morning and leaving tonight Monday.

The circus will arrive in three sections early Sunday morning over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad. The first section will leave Sharon, Pa., soon after midnight and will arrive here before dawn. This will carry the dining tents so that food will be ready for the performers when they reach the circus grounds. Fayette Field will be the scene of the setting of the big and little tops. All three sections will be unloaded by 8 o'clock.

The circus parade will begin at 7 o'clock Monday morning as there will be nothing to prevent a prompt start. Performances will be given at 2 and 5 o'clock P. M., and advance tickets will be on sale at the Connellsville Drug Company.

The circus goes from Connellsville to Washington, Pa., to show on Tuesday.

200 SHOPMEN STRIKE

Dickerson Run Workers Make Same Demands as McKees Rocks Workers.

About 200 employees of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad shops and yards at Dickerson Run went on strike this morning in sympathy with employees of the McKees Rocks yards of the same company who have been out for several days.

There was no disorder. The men held a meeting last night and decided to quit. They want whatever concessions are given to the McKees Rocks men. A delegate from Dickerson Run has been sent to confer with the McKees Rocks strikers so as to frame demands for presentation to officials.

No reliable information as to what the demands of the men are could be obtained. They want shorter hours and higher pay but on what scale could not be learned.

The strikers include car repairmen, car carpenters, car painters, blacksmiths and air inspectors. Not a wheel in the shops turned today.

The White Rock Methodist Protestant school arranged for a systematic missionary and temperance instruction, and organized a "teacher training class of about 15 members."

Among the other schools to be visited are: Tonight, East Liberty Church of God; Wednesday, May 10, West Leisenger Presbyterian, S. L. Baker of Mount Braddock, Summit Chapel, R. K. Smith of Dawson.

STATE EXHIBIT

College Farm Will Have Booth at Fayette Fair at Dawson.

The forthcoming Fayette Fair, to be held at the Dawson driving park, will have an interesting exhibit from the Pennsylvania State College farm, showing the latest advances made in scientific agriculture at this institution. The exhibit will be housed in a tent 50x80 feet, reservation for which has been requested by the college authorities and granted by Henry T. Cochran, proprietor of the park.

The farm exhibits, made throughout the state during the fair season, have attracted considerable attention from farmers and much useful knowledge has been gained and later put in practice in farm management.

PLANS SHAPING UP.

Veterans Report Good Progress in Memorial Day Preparations.

Plans are well rounding into shape for the annual Memorial Day services to be carried out by the William F. Kurtz Post No. 104 Grand Army of the Republic assisted by the Sons of Veterans, the Ladies' Circle No. 106 and other institutions in the United States, Alaska, and Porto Rico that are valued at $2,354,753.

The Post will hold its last meeting in the Old Fellows' Temple next Friday afternoon and at that time the committee in charge of the exercises will report. The Post will meet after next Friday in its former room in the city hall.

It is likely that contracts for building the schools will be let separately from that for the heating and ventilating systems.

MAY USE ROOM

Mayor Gives Old Soldiers Permission to Meet at City Hall.

The old soldiers have been granted the privilege of using the office of the Board of Health in city hall as a meeting room, one afternoon each month. The meeting will only last an hour and as it is only once a month the room can be given over to the old soldiers without any inconvenience to the health authorities.

The soldiers, finally met in the Old Fellows' Temple on Apple street, but since it has been sold they now have no hall. The post asked permission to use the room in the city hall. Mayor Marietta granted the request.

Twenty-eight old men have been ordered by Commissioner L. L. West for use by the veterans in decorating the graves of their dead comrades on Memorial Day. The 25 cents a day purchase these men each year and the amount is slowly mounting up.

PUMP IS FIXED

Someone Puts Visit to West Side and Fits Bolt in.

A good Samaritan from some part of town nobody seems to know, visited the West Side and fixed the broken town pump. A heavy bolt has been used in connecting the pump handle and the suction rod, which should hold them together for a long time.

It was not much trouble to put the pump in working order again. All that was needed was a wrench and a bolt, with a little mechanical knowledge in order to get it not over the bolt. The pump is now in better condition than for a long time.

It was repaired over night, the connection being broken one evening and the next day it was noticed that the water could again be drawn. Although the identity of the mechanic is unknown many motorists and pedestrians are grateful to him.

FIVE GET HEARINGS.

Two Pittsburg Strikers Appear Before the Mayor.

Five prisoners were given hearings before Mayor Marietta this morning. Two of them were men who have been thrown out of work by the strikes around Pittsburgh. Many of these strikers are going through this region now, hunting for work. One young man arrested in the Baltimore & Ohio yards for trespassing, said he was a moulder at Westinghouse. He was discharged, but another who said he was an older, arrested for train riding, was locked up for 18 hours.

Annual Convention.

The annual convention of the Fayette County Sunday School Association will be held August 23, 24 and 25, in Uniontown. It is expected to be the largest celebration in 20 years of organized Sunday school work in Fayette county.

PLANS READY SOON FOR NEW BUILDING ON THE WEST SIDE

Architect Altman to Report to Board Some Time
Next Week.

NO TIME IS TO BE LOST

Old Building to be Razed by First of June and by That Time Specifications
May be in the Hands of Contractors; Structure Will Cost $50,000.

Plans for the new grade school which is to be erected on the site of the present Seventh street school on the West Side will be submitted to the school board by Architect Harry Altman of Uniontown some time next week. A good possible after that the board will advertise for bids on the construction of the building. It is planned to start work as soon as possible after June 1 and rush it through to completion. It will hardly be ready by the time school reopens in September but the board is anxious to have it completed as soon as practicable and for that reason all possible haste will be made in the steps preliminary to the actual construction.

Architect Altman will submit his plans and specifications to the board and if they are satisfactory bids of contractors will be invited at once. If not, some changes will be made. The building is to cost approximately $50,000 and the architect is preparing his specifications accordingly.

The Seventh street school will be two stories high and will contain 12 rooms. Of these 12 will be school rooms and the other will be a room for teachers which can be made into a recreation room if necessary. The structure will in reality contain three floors. The first or "ground floor" will be about three feet below the level of the street. It will contain the janitors' rooms, boiler and coal rooms, and the combined auditorium and swimming pool and gymnasium.

Rev. John Taylor will preach at the Union Church at Jerome on Sunday afternoon July 9.

The graduating exercises of the Rockwood high school which were held last evening in the high school auditorium, was a great success. Prof. C. C. Ellis of Juniata College delivered an excellent address to the graduating class.

MAN DECLARES

MRS. BEAUMONT

Erie Woman Tells of Recovery of Spouse, After Taking Tanlac.

"My husband is now a well man, after twenty years of suffering from the most terrible form of stomach trouble."

"For four months up to about a month ago, he had hardly been able to work. The last eight weeks of that time, he being almost helpless," said Mrs. T. E. Beaumont of 218 East Fourth street, Erie, Pa.

"He bloated so after eating that I could not get his clothes around him and he suffered great pain through the bowels and from the kidneys."

"One day I picked up a paper and saw the advertisement of Tanlac. For several days afterwards he watched for the advertisement in which Erie people told of the marvelous recoveries from bad health of people who had been taking Tanlac."

"Finally he decided to try a bottle. He took the medicine for a few days in a hopeless way, but the third night I was surprised to see him drop off to sleep and when I awakened through the night he was still lying in the same position and breathing as regularly as a child."

"The next morning when he awakened he was rested, his stomach was clear and he ate a hearty breakfast, the first one for many years. He digested this meal without any trouble. His bowel and kidney trouble left him. After he had taken three bottles he was entirely well, and is now going to his work happy and determined to get along."

"Tanlac is now sold in Conneltsville exclusively by the Conneltsville Drug Co., where the prompt preparation can now be had.—Adv."

NORTH UNION LOSES AGAIN

Leisnering Boys Win Out by Score of 6 to 1; Pitt Freshmen to Clash With Dunbar Township at Leisnering on Saturday Afternoon at 2:30 O'clock.

The Dunbar township high school baseball team defeated the North Union township team for the second time Wednesday afternoon when Barnhart held the latter team to four hits and only one run. Dunbar township scored six. Barnhart struck up 16 more strikeouts to his credit making 50 for 25 innings this season.

Dunbar township made two scores in the first inning, giving them a good start. Kennedy was on second when McGee sent up a pop fly to the infield three men went after it and the ball dropped between them. The third baseman picked it up and threw it to second but no one was there to receive it and both McGee and Kennedy scored.

Tomorrow afternoon Dunbar township will play the Pitt freshmen at Leisnering. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

AFTER TERRILL DUNCAN

Monongahela Boxer Seeks the 'Tall Boy's' Sculp.

A challenger of Terrill Duncan, the colored Uniontown boxer, has sent a letter to The Courier asking that his challenge be published. The bold boxer who dares to take a chance with Duncan is Joe Williams, colored welterweight of Monongahela. He holds the championship of the Monongahela valley, having never been defeated.

He states that he would like to meet some of Fayette county's best before the Connellsville association at the next show if possible. His choice for the first bout is Terrill Duncan and Williams thinks he can keep his reputation when he goes up against the Uniontown lad.

It is not likely that any more shows will be fought before the Connellsville association again this season and as there is just one more show to be

DOUBLE SOMERSAULT

Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Has Remarkable Lady Performer.

The somersault whether it be single or double, is a feat which requires the most astounded practice and the most mathematical calculation. The first thing the tumbler learns is to jump from a spring board. The sensation of springing through the air is an unusual one. Next is the "stock somersault" which consists of merely springing up into the air, and slowly and with practically no physical exertion turning over. The motion is so slow that the spectator hardly realizes that the performer has revolved. Then begins the drill for the real somersault.

The double somersault has slain scores for in tumbling in mid-air one is up to eight on his head or neck, which would mean instant death. There are several men who accomplish this feat. In fact, off today at the White Garden Theatre, in Australia, D. I. Wallace of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, which comes to Connellsville Monday May 8 for performances at 2 and 8 P. M., will parade at 10 o'clock head of a woman who was able to accomplish this feat. He deputized his London agent to investigate and he reported that a member of the great Ward family of acrobats in was able to accomplish the double somersault. The act was instantly engaged by cable and their transportation arranged for. The act

BY-PRODUCT OVEN OWES ITS SUCCESS TO OUR ENGINEERS

Who Have Developed Its Use Into an Important Industry.

ITS DESIGN AND EFFICIENCY

Improved by American Methods and Practices: United States Steel Corporation gives impetus to New Oven Building: Growth of the Industry.

Much of the success attained by the by-product coke oven as an industrial and commercial factor is due to the skill of American engineers, not so much from the standpoint of original research and invention but to improvements upon the early foreign designs, and even more to the effective and practical methods employed in operation of the plants. This credit is accrued American engineers by Thomas G. Clark, a by-product coke oven expert, who read an exhaustive paper on the subject at a recent meeting of the New York section of the Society for Chemical Engineers.

The evolution of the by-product coke oven practice in the United States, the author observed, shows an interesting adaptation and improvement in practice on the part of the American engineers. The first by-product coke ovens were of the German type. They were soon found to be unsuitable for American coals and American conditions. It became necessary to cut down the time of operation on one hand, and to increase the size of the oven on the other. The methods in use in the industry today are the outcome of the trials which the engineers underwent in adapting a foreign idea and improving it and carrying it into practice on a large scale on American soil.

Since its introduction into the United States in 1891 the development of the by-product coke oven has been one of slow growth. The improvements by engineers have made its success industrially a possibility which in turn is leading more certainly to insure its success commercially. The entrance of the United States Steel Corporation into the by-product coke oven field was a very great incentive, particularly as illustrious bankers had been conservative in the financing of such propositions.

Following the example of the Steel Corporation a large number of smaller enterprises have equipped their coke consuming plants with by-product coke producing plants. The growing importance and value of the recovery products has caused provision to be made for their manufacture in many plants, including those designed to produce coke for domestic purposes.

In discussing the extent to which fuel resources may be conserved through the by-product process the author called attention to the fact that the yield of coke in beehive ovens averages about 55 per cent while in the by-product oven the yield is increased to an average of 75 per cent. Another point of saving brought out was that by securing a uniformity of product, one plant has succeeded in reducing the amount of coke used per ton of pig iron produced by 100 pounds. This saving reaches enormous figures when applied to the annual production of 30,000,000 tons of pig iron.

By saving the products of distillation which are derived when coal is coke, it is possible to produce a ton of coke for less than the cost of a ton of coal. The author reported that at the present time one by-product plant yields an income in by-products which pays the whole cost of coking and a daily profit of $150 in addition.

The possibility of using benzol as a substitute for gasoline as motor fuel is somewhat remote inasmuch as the output is insufficient in itself to even take care of the annual increase in number of motor driven vehicles. The proposed plant of the government to erect a plant for the extraction of nitrogen from the atmosphere can better be served by utilizing the ammonia produced in the by-product coke plants already in operation and which are in course of construction.

In tracing the history of coke manufacture considerable importance was attached to the fact that the total number of beehive coke ovens in the United States has been reduced from 100,000 in 1910 to 95,000 at the present time. Beginning with 40 ovens in 1894 the number of by-product ovens, in operation and in course of construction, has increased to 8,677.

The growth of the iron industry has been coincident with the growth of the coke industry. In 1891 coke sold for about $1 a ton, whereas today the price is close to $15 per ton. Any increase in price of coke acts as an incentive toward economy in the manufacture of iron which has found expression in the steady improvement and large development of the by-product coking industry.

Then again, many of the greatest bargains are odd pieces which might be sold before you had time to respond to our advertisement and you'd be disappointed instead of pleased—and it's PLEASED, not dissatisfied, customers that we are making.

Everyone in Fayette County, who was at all familiar with the Wallace store, knows that Wallace's always sold only reliable and up-to-date Home Furnishings. Practically every article in their stock is as staple as a gold dollar and really worth more today than they paid for it—so that, when we tell you that we've cut their prices in two, you'll have some idea what you can expect and a good reason why you mustn't lose a minute if you want the pick of these splendid goods.

At the Theatres.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE WARNING."—At the Soisson Theatre today "The Warning," a wonderful five part feature, will be the next release on the Equitable program, with Henry Kolker and Edna Mayo, two of the best known actors on the American stage. In the story, the story, which is itself is a wonderful revelation of the evils of too much "good fellowship," is presented in a way which will have a powerful effect on the minds of those who see it. It is a gripping realistic presentation, the facility of descent when a man starts on the downward path being shown in an appalling startling series of pictures, in which liberal drafts have been made on the Dore conception of the scenes described in Dante's "Inferno." The play will make a powerful appeal to those who are beginning to feel the influence of the temptations attending being a "good fellow," and while appreciating the dangers are unable to withstand them. The Victor three reel feature, "Royal Love," is a magnificent play with a romantic theme of love that makes it one of the most pleasurable plays produced by the Universal company. The Animated Weekly has girl cops in New York, Uncle Sam's bandit hunt and the baseball openings in New York, Chicago and Boston, and many other scenes. Tomorrow, the World Film Corporation will present the peerless beauty of the screen, Kitty Gordon, in the sensational society five reel drama, "As in a Looking Glass," a picture that spells success.

GLOBE THEATRE.

"NEARLY A KING."—Presenting John Barrymore, the celebrated comedian, is being shown today at the Globe. The production, in five acts, gives Mr. Barrymore the greatest opportunity of his career to display the thousand and one comic sides of his talented nature which have made him a prime favorite since his introduction to the film world by the Famous Players Film Company. It is the tale of a young American who has a great fortune, or misfortune, to resemble the Prince of Bulgaria, an adventurous spirit, who is just in the throes of being panned off on a piece of whom he has never seen. But the prince lives, an actress, and determines that he is going to marry her despite the rumors of state which render it expedient that he espouse the Princess of Olam. "Is She Black or White?" That is the question which John Barrymore makes upon asking concerning the girl whom he is being forced to marry. A fight which is one of the most real and thrilling that has ever been seen on the screen, is only an incident in this whirlwind of fun and romance in which Mr. Barrymore is at his very best. The role in which Mr. Barrymore plays combines thrills and romance, with the ridiculous situations in the depicting of which John Barrymore has no equal. Monday, "The Captain," featuring Marguerite Snow, will be shown. This play, the first of its kind produced by the Metro, gives Miss Snow opportunities for some of her best work.

THE ARCADE.

"KENNEDY SQUARE." Presenting Antonio Moreno, Muriel Outiche, Thomas Bronie and other star players, is being shown today. "The production is a live part Vitaphone drama of unusual interest. St. George Temple, a typical Maryland gentleman of the old school, lives in an aristocratic home on Kennedy Square. Harry Butler, a young blooded young southerner, tells him of his falling out with Grace Seymour, with whom he is in love and her father, the Hon. Douglas Seymour, on account of his

itching skins

When you know physicians have prescribed Resinol for 20 years in the treatment of itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, and have written thousands of reports such as "It is my regular prescription for itching," and "The result gave me marvelous relief in one of the worst cases of eczema," doesn't it make you say to yourself, "that's the right kind of treatment for my skin-trouble?" Resinol is sold by all druggists.

Alexander Wants to Pitch Phillies to Another Pennant

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER has asked Manager Pat Moran to use him in at least sixty games this season. Alex is more than anxious for the Phillies to repeat their feat of last season and capture the National League pennant. The great twister states that he is in wonderful shape and his arm never felt stronger. Last year he worked in forty-nine games. If Alexander participates in sixty games and wins a majority of them Pat Moran's team has an excellent chance to win the flag. Alexander's great work in the box last season had much to do with the Phillies winning the pennant.

SOME SPICY SPORT CHATS

Boston Braves Loom Up as Strong Pennant Contender.

OLD MACHINE IS WRECKED.

Few Members of 1914 Championship Team Are Left—This Year's Aggregation Is a Strong One—New Scoring Rule Stirrs Up Trouble.

The wrecking of the Boston Braves machine, which storm rolled everything that stood in its way in 1914, deserves a chapter by itself in baseball history.

Joe Connolly alone remains of the five gardeners who helped to bring a world's championship to Boston. Leslie Mann is with the Cubs, George Whitehead is on the Phillies roster, while Herb Moran and Ted Cather have slid into the minors.

Only two of the five infielders totaled around in 1914 are still with the club. "Smoot" Schmidt, who used to first base with considerable class, has quit the game; Charles Deal is with the St. Louis Browns, and Oscar Dwyer, utility man, is doing similar work for the Phillies.

Cocrellman, Cottrell, Grutcher and Hess, who were among the pitchers that got a split of the world series gold in 1914, have passed along. Of the regular hurlers who worked under Stanislaws in 1914 only three remain—Taylor, James and Rudolph.

But the wrecking of the 1914 team has enhanced the chances of the 1916 outfit because the new Braves combination is far more powerful than the world champion aggregation. The 1914 Braves wouldn't have much of a chance in the coming pennant battle simply because the other teams have been strengthened far beyond their 1914 power. Stanislaws saw that he had to rebuild with stronger material—and he has done it.

An old controversy has popped up in a new guise. Frank Baker is the storm center and Eddie Collins is his nemesis. The subject for debate is "Revised." That Collins' skillful work on the bases had much to do with fattening Baker's batting average and that Baker will find himself lost without Eddie's assistance as the season rolls on.

This is simply a rehash of the ancient assertion that Ty Cobb keeps Sam Crawford hitting well. As a matter of fact, Collins might help Baker more than Cobb does the man who follows him. For Eddie is a more conservative ball-player than the French Ty does worry the pitchers when he gets on the bases. He will make them waste a lot of balls, and this should help the batter. But he worries his teammates too. The Georgian is an individualist. He plays his own game in base running and very frequently crosses everybody when he goes down. The batters following him, of course, are very anxious to help him home, and the general situation is one of unrest, with everybody sharing in it. While Ty does help the pitcher in the hole, he doesn't aid the hitting of his teammates by anything like the margin claimed by some folks.

Peculiarities of scoring rules are always interesting. A happening that occasionally causes comment, develop-

LOUDERMILK SHOULD BE STAR

Billy Sullivan Says If Lanky Pitcher Had Spitter He Would Be Marvel.

Branch Rickey, former manager of the Browns, says Loudermilk should be one of the stars of the American league. "There isn't anything a pitcher needs that Loudermilk hasn't got," says Rickey.

Billy Sullivan, the veteran coach of the Detroit Tigers, suggests that the

WOULD PLACE UMPIRES IN INFIELD DURING BIG SERIES

Coach Billy Sullivan of the Detroit Americans has come forward with a new suggestion for the placing of umpires in world's series baseball games. Sullivan says there is no real need for umpires in the outfield.

His plan would have these men stationed in the infield, so that each base could be watched by an umpire. The arbitrators stationed at first and third base could accurately give decisions on drives striking close to the foul line, he said.

Sullivan Making Star Out of Bechler. Billy Sullivan, who is with the Detroit Tigers as instructor of pitchers, intends to make a star out of George Bechler. He has been with the Jennings forces for several years and always has displayed a lot of stuff, but has lacked control.

Greatest Speed Power Silence Cleanliness Accessibility Economy

One way to know Twin-Cylinder motor efficiency—POWERPLUS, the new Indian motor.

It alone embodies those standards of quietness, cleanliness, power, and speed which advance motorcycling to its highest degree of perfection.

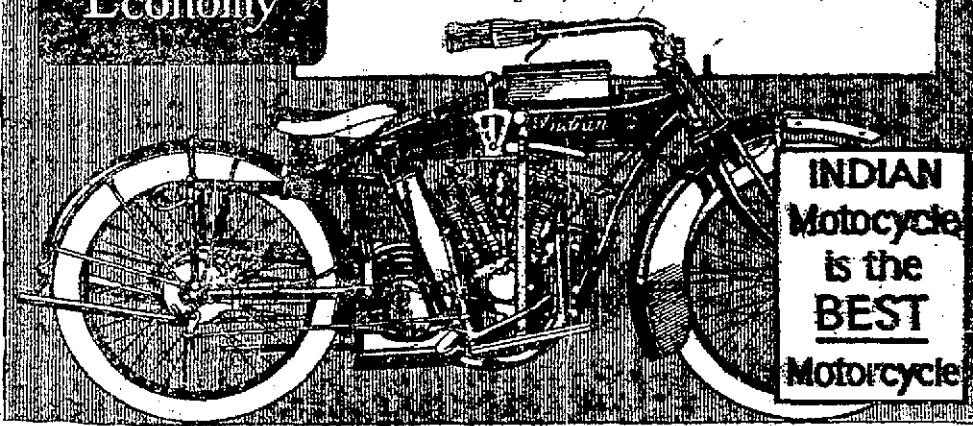

The Powerplus motor develops more horse power per cubic inch of piston displacement than any other stock motor. Without "tuning up," any stock Powerplus develops 15 to 18 horse power, per dynamometer test, and a speed of approximately 70 miles an hour.

Long stroke, light reciprocating parts and minimum friction give the Powerplus its unsurpassable power. Accuracy of design makes oil-tightness absolute. It has the fastest pickup known—from standstill to 60 miles an hour in 30 seconds!

You must see the Powerplus to appreciate its ease of control, its steady, silent generating force, its many super-qualities.

Come TODAY and ask us to explain why the Powerplus motor is best and should have any money of its kind—why the 1916 Indian is the highest development of motorcycle motor quality.

AN EVOLUTION IS IN PROGRESS IN THE COAL BUSINESS

Says Chairman M. H. Taylor of the Pittsburgh-Coal Company.

COKE REGION COAL IS A FACTOR

In the Markets Formerly Supplied from the Pittsburgh District: This and the Opening Up of New Fields Disturbing Elements in Situation.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—At the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on Monday and Tuesday on the lake cargo coal case, the Pittsburgh Coal Company was represented by M. H. Taylor, chairman of the board of directors, and H. P. McCue, general manager of transportation, as the principal witnesses. In addition, J. D. McPherson, auditor of the company, and Dr. Frank Warren, the latter an expert metallurgist of this city, were on hand to show the need for a reduction in the rates of 78 cents a ton now being paid on coal from the Pittsburgh district to the lakes.

Statistics were presented on which the witnesses were questioned, tending to show that despite the reduction which was made in the Pittsburgh rate in 1912 from 88 to 78 cents a ton, this reduction was not sufficient to meet the demands of the situation. At that same time, namely, in 1912, the Pittsburgh rate was reduced from 95 1/2 cents to 78 cents, the Mountaineer, W. Va., rate from 80 1/2 cents to 78 1/2 cents while the Delington, W. Va., rate remained at 90 1/2 cents.

Tables were presented showing that although the total volume of coal shipped from the Pittsburgh district to the lake ports for transportation had increased, the percentage of tonnage as compared with that from other districts had decreased. It was stated that in 1908 the Pittsburgh district had shipped 60 per cent of the lake cargo coal but that this had now fallen to 47 per cent.

Other tables were presented showing the relative distances from the Pittsburgh mines and other districts to lake ports; the miles per ton per unit, and a number of other tonnage figures.

When C. Andrade, Jr., of New York, appearing for the Connellsville Coal Tariff Association, including the Connellsville Central Coal Company, the United Connellsville Coal Company, the Fayette Coal Company, and a number of other companies, began yesterday to cross examine J. D. McPherson, auditor for the Pittsburgh Coal Company, as to some of the details connected with figures in several of the tables presented by the Pittsburgh operators, their attorney objected. He based his objection on the ground that it would reveal certain trade secrets of the company to the knowledge of which their opponents were not entitled.

Mr. Andrade argued that the information he sought would not give the Pittsburgh company's opponents in the lake cargo coal business any knowledge which could aid them, as he desired to have put in the record only the tonnage for 1915 of various grades of lake cargo coal sold by the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the average price. The total lake tonnage for the year, which was 3,755,600 tons, was given in the table, and the average price received $1.0557. For other sales the average price was $1.1425.

After Mr. McPherson's counsel refused to allow him to answer the questions propounded by Mr. Andrade, it was suggested that the tables be stricken from the record as of no value to the case if cross examination could not be had thereon. Finally it was decided that the matter be left for the commission to decide as to whether Mr. McPherson be required to answer the questions at a later hearing.

"There is an evolution going on in the coal business," said Chairman Taylor during the course of his examination, "and people ought to stop and take cognizance of it. There was a time when the great big Connellsville field was bearing a high grade of coal and it was preserved for making coke. They converted it into coke there with their behemoth ovens and they shipped it everywhere. The last behemoth oven has been built and that coal is now being shipped to by-product ovens everywhere. The open hearth furnace has come along with its ability to use raw coal. Then we have a field to the north of Pittsburgh coming into play now with a large acreage that is today contributing a very substantial quantity of very desirable coal for by-product and for steam purposes. These are changes that have come along, and when you consider the question of the value of coal anywhere, you have to take into consideration the future, particularly with regard to this coal."

You have to take into consideration these changes which we feel have been very disturbing in this question of the freight rate. It is not only a question of the freight rate. When asked what the other conditions were to which he referred as disturbing elements in trying to adjust the rate to the satisfaction of the Pittsburgh operators, Mr. Taylor said:

"The opening up of new fields, the utilization of other veins for the purpose of getting a higher grade of coal which in the beginning we thought could only be taken care of in the Pittsburgh district. The world is full of coal, fortunately for the people that use it and unfortunately for the people who are in that business. That is the situation."

Hearings will be resumed here on May 31 with a view to concluding all inquiry in the case before the vacation of the commission in August.

LABOR PROFITS BY WAR

Estimated That Pay Has Increased $5,000,000,000 in a Year.

It is estimated that labor in the United States has had its pay increased by more than $5,000,000,000 a year by the war in Europe. Edward F. Mcweeney, chairman of the directors of the port of Boston, figures that of the total value of products at present being shipped to belligerents, 45 per cent is labor cost. He reasons as follows:

"At the present time the export of this class of goods is in excess of $100,000,000 per month over and above what it is in normal times. Assuming, therefore, that 15 per cent of this is labor cost, it means that $15,000,000 is being paid per month to laboring classes above the normal amount. Taking the average wage of all classes at $5, it would mean that the excess employment in the production of war supplies numbers in the neighborhood of 300,000 persons."

He believes the ending of the war will bring these wage earners face to face with radical readjustment.

Our old friend rheumatism is having his final this year, and a few words of caution from one who knows all about it may not be amiss.

Wear rubbers in damp weather; keep your feet dry; drink plenty of lemonade, and avoid strong alcoholic drinks.

If rheumatism gets you, or seizes, and you have sharp twinges, gnawing pains in swollen joints or muscles, you can get rid of all agony in just a few days by taking one-half teaspoonful of Rheuma once a day.

All druggists know about Rheuma; it's harmless, yet powerful; cheap yet sure, and a 50-cent bottle will last a long time. Ask A. A. Clarke or any druggist.—Adv.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 25 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be hungry at an account of your fat, but go to A. A. Clarke or any good druggist, and get a box of Oil of Korea capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Watch yourself once a week and not what a pleasant and refreshing method this is for removing the superfluous fat from any part of the body. It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be bothered with even a single pound of unsightly fat.—Adv.

On May 14 to represent the local lodge of I. O. O. F. at the grand lodge there. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Debolt of Charleston, will leave soon for an extended trip through the west.

Barbara Frietchie and The Flag

HERE we show the main incident in the story of Dame Barbara Frietchie, who, gray-haired old woman tho' she was, feared not to flaunt the beloved Stars and Stripes in the very faces of the enemies of her country as they marched through the streets of Fredericktown.

That the rebel leader, General Stonewall Jackson, recognized and honored her act as one of extreme bravery and patriotism, is shown by the lines of the verse in which he says: "Who harms one hair of yon gray head Dies like a dog; march on," he said.

Occasions constantly arise in every village and municipality when every patriotic American citizen should SHOW THE COLORS. Upon every National Holiday and upon occasions of a purely local nature the Stars and Stripes, floating to the breeze from every house and flagstaff, lends color to the occasion and fosters a spirit of patriotism as well.

PETEY DINK—Maybe Pete Will Let the Old Gent Be After This.

By C. A. Voight.

Capt. George B. Rodney

"Tell 'em that you are an embittered soldier and that it stands not with you to receive messages at the hand of a common soldier. He must have come on an important message. Tell him that you will not receive the note except at the hand of an officer—yes?"

"Yes, I see. And then what?"

"Why, then, he'll go on down the hill. They'll let him come to the house. They'll just pass him out through their lines. And when he goes down I'll follow him with Manuel here, and when we reach the line of cottonwoods we can hide in 'em till daylight. When they send an officer up to see you at daylight we can grab 'em as they come back."

"Of course they'll holler about being under a white flag, but they won't be so stupid. Cause they'll drop their white flag as soon as they are out of range of our rifles—no?"

"Taken aback at the refusal to receive the note, the soldier stumbled off down the hill, his lantern bobbing along among the mesquite-brush like a lightning bug in summer. No sooner had his shadow melted away in the dusk than Mr. Wilkes and Manuel, the Mexican 'horse-rancher,' left the house. They followed the soldier stealthily down the slope to the line of cottonwoods, which stood out, a low, lying blot, against the dusk of the valley."

"We'll wait here, Manuel," said the old ex-soldier shortly. "We'll wait here till the next outfit comes fit to take Upton to town. It ought to be just about daylight. Wake me up when the light first shows."

The hours of the night passed with tedious feet. The eyes of the watchers were strained with looking for the dawn to break over the eastern ranges. After putting his papers in order all night long, Upton found relief—or at least surcease from worry—by working over his machine, tinkering here and there till he had built up a species of iron-clad automobile. The soldier had tinkered the rest of the night, and he was now at least sure of his work by the faintest voice of Dorothy calling him to breakfast. While he was eating, a sandwich in one hand, his rifle in the other, a hail from outside the house brought him to his feet. Three men stood within easy rifle range of the house, a dirty white cloth proclaiming them to be messengers from the rebels.

Instantly he laid his rifle against the house, and motioning the Mexicans to lay aside their arms, he signified them to come forward. Then, with a caution to Nolan and Lewis to shoot on the first sign of treachery, he strode forward to meet them.

There was no discussion. The senior officer, Colonel Mayes, simply handed him a bulky envelope, which Upton thrust into his shirt, and saluting stiffly, faced about and walked quickly down toward the trees in the hollow. Upton stood watching them and the movement among the trees where Wilkes and Manuel lay concealed.

A shot from cover—and a very long range shot it was—warned him that all dealings with him were over until he was ready to give his reply to the note. So, sighing, he turned quickly back into the house, opening the note as he did so. The clipping from the newspaper took first attention. Again, and yet again he stared at the headlines, as if they were unbelievable.

Walking like a man in a trance, he strode across the great main room. He opened the office door and entered—to face Dorothy, seated in a chair, a pile of papers in her lap as she held them one by one to her eyes. Galena, copper snuffboxes, gold and silver—she passed them over with a casual look. A piece of brilliant sapphire caught her fancy; she leaned forward to pick it up.

Upton grasped her roughly by the shoulder.

"What are you doing in here?" he demanded curtly. It was the first harsh word she had ever received from her father.

"Oh! Let go, father; you are hurting me. I saw the door was open and I came in."

"The door is still open. You can go out—go!"

Tears came to her eyes, for the girl loved her father very dearly. She gathered up the samples that she had taken from the safe and replaced them carefully in the lowest compartment. As she rose to her feet her hand knocked from the shelf in the safe a little paste-board box that fell to the floor, and, striking on a corner, rolled out into the room, opening as it did so.

Upton sprang forward to pick it up, dropping the open note from his outstretched hand. He seized the box, which he thrust roughly into the bosom of his shirt, and turned to find Dorothy facing him, the newspaper clipping in her hand.

"Oh! Oh!" she cried, and again, "Oh!"

She gulped.

"And they accused him of that? It cannot—must not—be! I will not have it! An American paper accuses him of that? Is there no justice in the world? Is all charity dead? Couldn't they wait to hear his side of it? What is it, father? What is it?"

There had come a burst of firing from outside the house. Upton had staggered back from the table, a stream of tell-tale blood from his shoulder showing how one at least of the hostile bullets was accounted for.

Recoiling, he sat down suddenly in a chair, the supine body, the sick look upon his face, the sudden white about the nose and the corners of his mouth showing that he had succumbed to the shock of a high-power bullet fired from long range.

Dorothy sprang to aid him. Laid him down upon the floor with a pile of papers under his head, and tore frantically at the collar of the brown flannel shirt that seemed to cut off his breath. Speechless, he resisted her every effort to assist him. It was not till unconsciousness mercifully came to shut off the pain that she got a view of the wound. It was not so bad as she had feared—simply a shot-hole in the shoulder at a spot where a bandage could be readily applied.

Hastily she called to Miranda to get her that little water container in the bucket. Meanwhile she tore hastily some strips of linen for the bandages. The pasteboard box interfering with her work, she laid it upon the table. The old, brown Mexican woman ran quickly back to the room and seized the roll of linen from the girl's hands.

"See, now! It is not so bad. Set there is no bone broken, thanks be to the saint! It is but a clean shot-hole and will heal in a fortnight. The fainting? Salts and angels! It is but the shock of a wound on a man who has no food in his belly."

So she gabbled on, oblivious to all save the man who lay upon the floor. Dorothy picked up the note and read it carefully, drawing her breath hard. So that was it! His life was to be bartered for a stone—a green stone—a mere emerald! In that moment she knew that his life was more to her than the wealth of all the Indies—and that she had found it out too late!

If he were spared—if he could be spared, she would show him, if need be, she would tell him frankly. She would ask Marian.

She remembered now how Marian had festered in the cavalry camp with her over this very question—and she dropped her head upon her arms. A sharp corner of the pasteboard box struck her forehead. She gave it an impatient push and it dropped to the floor, making a sharp, tinkling noise as it landed. Dorothy glanced down casually at it, only to rise and stand as one petrified, her eyes upon the open box and its contents, now come to view.

For there, in the middle of the floor, released from its wrappings—there lay at her feet, staring at her with green, unblinking eyes—the Emerald Bell!

MURDER.

For a moment the girl stood, gazing with horrified eyes at the jewel at her feet. At first she could not believe that she was awake; then, leaning forward, she picked it up and placed it upon the table. The act, simple as it was, roused her thoroughly. With a little shiver, she turned to her father, who had regained consciousness and was watching her through half-closed eyes.

"Well!" he said. "Well! Say it! I know perfectly well what you are thinking. Give it a name."

"How came you to take the Bell, father? I saw it in his tent when we sought refuge in his camp. You saw it there, too. Was it then that you got it?"

Her father nodded silently but did not take his eyes from her face.

Well she knew where the trouble lay. Well she knew why he had taken the stone, for the trouble had lain with them always, and the shadow of it had blighted the latter years of her mother's life.

Same upon every other subject, the wealthy old miner, who had earned a world-wide reputation as a connoisseur in matters of art, had not along with it an equally well-earned reputation as a kleptomaniac.

For years she had known of this failing of her father. On her very deathbed Dorothy's mother had spoken plainly of it, laying it upon the daughter to be careful to prevent any such thing from occurring again.

"You saw the stone when we were in his camp," she reiterated. "Was it then that you took it?"

Again he nodded silently. The girl, her bright head sunk upon her hands, stood silent with the shame of it.

"I needed it—I needed it! And they would not sell such a curio. That old priest would as soon have sold his soul as this miserable Bell. It's a good thing, my dear, that I did take it, though, for now I have the means with which to buy Kynaston's freedom. Who is that coming up the hill? In it Wilkes come back?"

It was Wilkes come back, and Manuel along with him. A volley of curses of more than ordinary fluency told that they had companions. Motivating the women back, Upton flung open the door, admitting the two men with their prisoners.

"They came all right, but we had to use some coaxing—hey, boy?" laughed Wilkes, punching the old colonel of artillery in the ribs with the long barrel of his revolver. Colonel Mayes fairly spat at him; then, seeing the green Bell upon the table, he started back in surprise. The next second he was fairly fawning before the table.

"For this jewel," he cried, "I'll give you anything! It will bring the last large sum of money our forces will require before our army establish a government of true patriots and we are able to issue loans as a recognized nation."

"Oh, get down to cases!" snorted old Wilkes.

"This, then. We have the men, but no arms—no money to get arms. Men? Pah! We are gathering men on all sides. Our forces are daily increasing. Only last night we had a party of seventy volunteers sent in by Captain Colquhoun. He sent them in with a request that we send back the ropes at once so that he could forward a fresh detachment."

"And you call them volunteers?" asked Dorothy.

"Si, señorita! They, too, are volunteers—unwilling volunteers—nevertheless, volunteers."

Wilkes granted.

"Nominally all that chatter," he said. "What you want is that Emerald Bell, isn't it?"

"Si, si! For that we will let go our prisoner; we will allow you to depart in peace—anything, everything! I speak for the general—I—"

"Shut up!" interrupted Upton. The old miner turned to Wilkes.

"I'm going down to their camp myself," he said shortly. "You hold these hostages for my safe return. If I deliver with this old highlander personally, give him the Bell if I have to, but anyway, bring Kynaston back with me."

He hesitated.

"I really owe it to the boy," he concluded. "What are you shaking your head at, Wilkes?"

"Bray a fool in a mortar, yet shall his folly depart not from him," quoted Mr. Wilkes. "I remember hearing that at Sunday school. If you go down there an' promise him the Bell for Kynaston he'll grab you an' shoot you. If you don't come across with the Bell, if you take it with you he'll take it, shoot you, an' then shoot Kynaston."

"No, street! The only thing to do is to send this here colonel what has seen the Bell back to General Oblong an' tell him that you'll swap it for Kynaston."

Dorothy rose, pale-faced, her eyes alight with blue fire, like two turquoise flames.

"Indeed, I shall take no further risk in this matter. You will go, father; you owe it to him. I shall go with you, and we shall take the Bell."

Wilkes stared at her, uncertain whether he had heard aright.

"You—you—you? Not by a long shot, Miss Dorothy! Why, it'd be sheer murder—no less! Have you both lost your minds?"

The girl's lips were well-nigh colorless; but Wilkes, who knew men, knew when he saw the tense lines in her face that she had passed the dividing line between common sense and impulse.

"But how?" he asked. "How can you take the Bell?"

"So that no one can detect it? Have no fear—wait."

She disappeared with the Bell into her own room. A moment later she returned, her face flushed with excitement, her eyes luminous, standing, a veritable picture, in the golden square of sunlight that lay upon the floor.

"Come!" she said imperiously to her father. "Come! We have no time to lose. You will slip these two men in safety till we return."

Wilkes gave up, muttering his discontent as he turned away, shaking his gray head.

"Ain't you got no sense, Upton? Don't you know that what you plan is plumb madness? I've got a great mind to pull a gun on you an' not let you go on one step."

For answer Dorothy shook her head. She would not betray her father here. She would not let him know that she knew that her father remained here.

"No," she said again, quickly; "he went for us and we owe it to him. Whatever shall be said of us, no man shall say that we Uptons do not pay our debts. I have the Bell where none can over find it. Come, father!"

Like a man in a dream, Upton followed her out the door. The rest of the party morosely eyed the two as they walked down the hill, the girl golden-haired, trim-limbed; the sturdy, square-shouldered figure of the miner plucking heavily at her side. Silently they passed down the slope; still speechless they crossed the arroyo beyond the alamos—the cottonwoods—where Wilkes and Manuel had made their capture that morning.

As they approached the lines of the besiegers they were greeted with a yell from the outpost. Twenty men surged forward to seize them, but were swept back by an officer, who sprang forward, mackerel in one hand, his low-slung sombrero in the other.

"Back, porras!" they heard him cry. "It is Senor Upton himself who desires speech with all of general. Is it not so, mi amigo?"

Upton nodded carelessly.

About the cock-fires one or two women moved lazily. The whole camp was asleep in the sunlight as Upton and Dorothy entered the house.

For a second the two stood at gaze, the glare of the sun still blinding them. But when their eyes had become accustomed to the cool, darkened interior Dorothy gasped and Upton arose softly. There before them, his arms tied at the elbows behind his back, stood Kynaston under charge of a guard of four men. Behind a table sat the blind priest, smiling quietly, and the stout, dark-skinned, bull-necked general, who was in a furious rage.

"And you dare to tell me that you do not know where it is, when the padre here says that he is sure you know its whereabouts?"

Just then Upton stopped forward.

"I have the Bell," he said quietly. "If you let Kynaston go, as you promise, you get it; otherwise not."

"Ha-ha!" The general uttered a mirthless laugh. "You hold you till I get it, anyway." He waved his hand carelessly in the direction of the young American.

"Take him out and shoot him," he ordered in an offhand way.

"You bloody villain! You worse than dog—you wretched, yellow cur! You horse thief, robber, villain, bandit, murderer! You conscienceless, perfidious blackmailer! You dirty, double-crossing cheat! Snide! Crook! Grater! Thinhorn!"

Upton was blissing, raving mad with rage. Despite the blood he had lost from the gunshot wound, his face was fiery red. The voice stood out, knotted, on his head; his hands were groping furiously about his empty holster.

"Is your word nothing?" he raved. "Here you promised to free Kynaston if I gave you the Emerald Bell; I come down to arrange the details; you seize me and execute him anyway. Have you no sense of honor—not even a mestizo's?"

Stunned by the very audacity of the man, who defied him even when knowing full well what tortures lay in store for the presumptuous, General Oblong stared open-mouthed at Upton, listening without offering a word in answer. But when the miner told him he was a double-dealer, and—that was worse—proved it, he came to life.

"My word is sacred; not even a gringo can impugn my honor!" he yelled. The paradox would have been funny had it not been so serious.

Oblong arose, his face twitching, his body positively shaking with anger.

"Here, put a bullet in him somewhere!" he roared, pointing at Upton.

Taking advantage of the diversion, Kynaston drew back, shaking off his guards. But in a moment they seized him by the elbows and threw him head out of the door. Upton, his fingers clenching and unclenching convulsively, stood eying the furious half-breed, while Dorothy laid a restraining hand upon her father's arm.

Before he could even respond to the jarring pressure of her fingers a group of angry men rushed through the open door and threw her forcibly back against the wall.

She fell to her knees, staggering again to her feet, as she was aware, as one in a dream, of a hideous, fury-distorted face thrust within a foot of her father's scornful countenance; of a dozen dirty, evil-smelling ponies soldiers hanging to Upton as ants hang to a dying hornet.

Then came a sharp crack and a spit of flame. She saw her father stagger back, sink, helplessly to his knees, and sag forward on his face in the center of the maddened group.

A bare five seconds she stood there, then the full meaning of the scene enacted under her eyes dawned upon her.

She was about to scream, but a hand upon her lips mercifully stifled it. A strong arm drew her back through the open door, and she heard, still as if in a dream, a voice she had learned to know and love. Kynaston was speaking brokenly:

"Steady, Miss Dorothy! I know! My heaven, if I could only have foreseen this! Come quickly and make no noise. Use your breath only for running."

"But—Mr. Kynaston—daddy—my father—"

"No use, I tell you! They have killed him! Murderers! Just as they probably killed others last night! Come, I say!"

There was no withstanding his appeal, for he had seized her hand and was fairly pulling her after him. Thus they began their race for the killing trees in the bottom. Breathless, sobbing from the excitement and the speed, not knowing by what accident the way was clear for them, the girl hurried along with him, dry-eyed and staring, as one who has seen a sight preternaturally appalling.

"You see—he panted it out as they ran—I tried to get word to you and could not. I feared you would attempt some such quixotic thing. They meant to kill me, of course. They would have been better so. Then when you came in I intended to anger the old second-dread at me, and partly succeeded. Then when they threw me out my guard ran back and I saw the ravine that they had tied me with across an old wagon tire till I cut it through."

A spitter of rifle shots cut short his explanation.

Pulling her to right and left to disturb the aim of the Mexicans, he dashed through the cottonwoods and ran up the slope. Even before the door of the house could be opened to them, they were pounding on the frame. A second later they staggered into the room to face the gray-bearded ex-deputy sheriff.

"Where's Upton?" he demanded truculently. "Where's Upton?"

Beyond a brief nod he paid no attention to Dorothy, nor even to Kynaston.

A spitter of rifle shots cut short his explanation.

Pulling her to right and left to disturb the aim of the Mexicans, he dashed through the cottonwoods and ran up the slope. Even before the door of the house could be opened to them, they were pounding on the frame. A second later they staggered into the room to face the gray-bearded ex-deputy sheriff.

"Where's Upton?" he demanded truculently. "Where's Upton?"

Beyond a brief nod he paid no attention to Dorothy, nor even to Kynaston.

"HOME STRETCH" IS REACHED THOSE WHO ARE TO WIN BIG PRIZES MUST KEEP A-GOING

Generous Harvest is Waiting for Gleaners. Field for Subscriptions in Courier's Contest Has Not Been Half Worked and Contestants Must Get Them Now.

Opportunity time is indeed here in the Courier contest. No more voting coupons will be published. The last one appeared Wednesday and this week is the last in which the voting coupons will be good. Therefore, candidates, get all of your coupon tallies in this week. No voting coupons will be counted after May 6 and opportunity time has now arrived. The other name for "Opportunity Time" in the contest is "Subscription Time."

With the close of the "Club of Thirty Period" "Boosters Period" was inaugurated. This was done primarily to aid the candidates who did not make as many specialists during "Club of Thirty" as they wished. "Boosters Period" started May 2 and will close on Wednesday, May 17, just three days before the close of the contest. This period is, positively the last special vote offer to be made during the contest, as no special votes other than double votes on new business will be given during the last three days. During "Boosters Period" every $25 turned in by or for a candidate will be entitled to one hundred and fifty thousand EXTRA votes. If the whole $25 is new business then the special certificate will be good for three hundred thousand extra votes. This is not quite as good as "Club of Thirty," but will enable every candidate to boost their score during the closing days of the contest.

The close of The Courier contest is fast approaching. There are after today just two weeks more—13 actual working days—and if the days that have gone by have been busy ones for the candidates, the 13 days to come must be equally more so. The home stretch is reached at last and the contestant who works up to the last minute of the last hour of the last day is the one who is going to win and win big. No contest is over until the last vote is in the ballot box and no matter what some one may tell you, no one knows who is going to win the big prizes. There are lots of people who think they know, but thinking and knowing are two different things. person to win the Saxon Car is going to be the one who has the greatest number of votes and the person to win the garden lot is going to be the one who has the second greatest number of votes and for anyone to say that the close of the contest is a sure winner is pure idle guess work.

"Club of Thirty Period" simply determined who would not be able to win and in no sense would be able to win. This period simply accentuated the keen competition for winning and there is some competition. There are probably now 12 possible winners of the two top prizes, but who will win depends entirely on what they do between now and the close of the contest. If some contestant looking over their reserve votes says, "Well, I have got many votes in reserve, I guess I will lay low," he or she is scheduled for a big surprise at the close for the winning contestants are the ones who make the next two weeks the most productive of any period that has gone before. If you think you have done well in the past and have created a good healthy reserve, don't sit down now and think you have done enough—not if you want to win—for winning in this contest won't come that way. The competition is very keen. Just remember that and there are going to be some who are not going to sit down and think they have done enough, but are going to keep right on to the close. That is the way to win—keep a-going. If you do otherwise after the contest is over you will think and say, "Well, I wish I had taken the Contest Editor's advice."

There are scores of subscriptions to be gotten. In fact, the field has not been half worked. One man in Connellsville told the Contest Editor recently that he had not been solicited for his subscription and he knew other men who had not been. So if any candidate thinks he or she has done well they better take a "Tumble" to themselves and realize that it is a big field, and a generous harvest waiting for the gleaners.

New subscriptions count most, to be sure. They are made more valuable to the contestants because they are more valuable to The Courier. There are hundreds of subscriptions to be had for the asking. If you cannot get a year, the make six months and falling in that get four months. But whatever you do, Get Something. Make the most of your time.

"PEACE ONLY WITH HONOR" IS ANSWER OF CONGRESSMAN

Representative Porter Replied to Telegrams of Pacifists.

TELEGRAPHIC FLOOD COSTLY

About $250,000 Spent Sending Messages to Members of Congress Urging Them to Avoid a Break With Germany; Reveals a Big Plot.

Special to The Courier.
WASHINGTON, May 5.—Representative Porter of Pittsburgh, in replying to the peace telegrams which have poured in on him, as on many other congressmen during the past few days, has informed his constituents that he will go as far in the prevention of war, not only with Germany, but with any other country, as "a due regard to our just rights" and "unblemished honor" will permit. He expresses himself as opposed to President Wilson's policy in regard to Americans traveling on armed merchantmen, and declares that the President's recent message to Congress was uncalled for. Mr. Porter is a member of the House committee on foreign affairs.

One of the sources of the flood of telegrams, of which about 150,000 are said to have been received at a profit to the telegraph companies of probably $250,000, was revealed here by one of the delegates attending the annual meeting of the American Electrochemical Society. This visiting scientist told how on passing through Cleveland he "stumbled into" one of the places from which telegrams were being sent "on to Washington."

"I was standing about Cleveland several evenings ago," he said, "when I saw in an arcade just off Euclid street an office with a big sign in the window inviting the passer-by to wire his congressman urging peace. I stepped into the building and found long tables full of telegrams already prepared, for the signature of anyone who wished to send one. There were only two girls in the office, both working on typewriters preparing more telegrams."

"I was given to understand that if I did not care to pay for sending a telegram to some representative, it would be sent for me without any expense whatever if I would only pick out one that suited me and sign it. The girl said she did not know where the money was coming from which ran the show, and that she did not know who was paying her salary."

"While the American Electrochemical Society and other organizations are working for preparedness and national defense, trying to help this country to save itself, all these people who are sending telegrams to their representatives are fighting against the very preparedness which is so much needed."

"SUNNY JIM" A HIT

Pittsburgh Captivated by the Gentle Evangelist.

Special to The Courier.
PITTSBURGH, May 5.—Never in the history of the little town on the hill top have the people of Pittsburgh had such a treat as they are having now. Rev. James T. Lowe, an ordained minister and traveling evangelist, who is as able and as popular as Billy Sunday or any modern special worker, is giving the people his services in a campaign.

The mass meeting for men Sunday attracted a large crowd and "Sunny Jim" as he is familiarly known, held them spellbound for two hours with his famous lecture, "Down the Jericho Road." And then the men said he stopped too soon.

Many had to be turned away Sunday evening, unable to get in. People are coming for miles to show their appreciation of such a great man coming to a rural district, while over a score of large cities are waiting on his services. His broad smile, his strong personality and his sympathetic heart, coupled with the fact that he is free from abuse and vulgarity, has won for him
